SEVENTY THOUSAND ATTENDED AN OLD KENTUCKY BARBECUE.

MRS. CLARK OUSTED

THE RELIEF CORPS AND LADIES ARE STILL IN SESSION.

National Association of Ex-Prisoners and Daughters of Veterans
Elect Their Officers.

New Stock of Hardware--Brick Building
Going Up.

Louisville, Ky., Sept. 13.—So far as the veterans are concerned, the twenty-ninth annual encampment closed tonight with as many attractions as on any other night of the week.

The ladies will continue in session tomorrow. Today there were over 70,000 present at the old Kentucky barbecue, and tonight the camp fires were largely attended with the principal events at Music hall, Phoenix hall gardens and National park. Among the speakers were Gen. Gordon, Buckner, J. W. Burke, Cassius M. Clay, Senator Burrows, Col. W. D. Wiskersham, Samuel McFee, H. C. Russell, John H. Leathers and others.

The week of unprecedented hospitality and good will in connection with the twenty-ninth annual encampment of the G. A. R. closes with sadness. Even the burning sun became shrouded with dark clouds today. While the funerals of the five victims of Wednesday's explosion were in progress, fully 100 were suffering from injuries sustained at the collapse of the grand stand during the display of fire works last night.

Those from a distance who were injured were for the most part guests of Louisville people, and the victims of Wednesday's explosion were all members of the Louisville Legion, made up of the sons of leading citizens. The hospitals are full of patients suffering from the heat and injuries received at the accident last night. At the hospitals all are doing well. So far as can be learned from fifty or more homes where the injured are being cared for, they are all doing well to-day except Mrs. Hirshfeld, who had her foot mashed and hip dislocated, and may not recover.

Edward Hoar, a musician of Springfield, Mass., is in a serious condition. His left leg was crushed.

While the ladies of the G. A. R. and the Women's Relief Corps as well as the National encampment proper, continued their sessions, the national association for those who are not delegates in either of these three assemblies, at Wilder park the entire day was devoted to the most mammoth "old Kentucky barbecue" that was ever spread.

The National Association of ex-Prisoners of War elected today: President, George W. Grant; vice-president, Charles F. Sturtevant of Pennsylvania; secretary, John S. Ferguson of Iowa; treasurer and treasurer, W. W. Long of New Jersey; executive, J. M. Lang of New Jersey; J. C. Seely of Minnesota and Amson Bliss of Michigan.

The Daughters of Veterans elected the following national officers: Mrs. Ellen N. Walker, Massachusetts; president; Mrs. Alice Greenway of Boston; senior vice-president; Mrs. Brown of Worcester; junior vice-president, Miss Lizzie Kimball of Pittsburgh, Pa.; secretary; Mrs. J. Allen, Massachusetts; treasurer; Miss Anna Redding, Nebraska, chaplain.

The Woman's Relief Corps did nothing, owing to the injunction against the national officers restraining them from unseating Mrs. Ada Clark of Canton, one of the national commanders of the department of Ohio, who had been most martyred and suspended and was reinstated at Washington three years ago.

At 1 o'clock today Judge Edwards refused to make the Clark injunction permanent. On the restraining order being dissolved, Mrs. Clark was ousted and the Relief Corps assumed control of business, electing the following national officers: President, Mrs. Elizabeth Turner of Massachusetts; senior vice-president, Mrs. May Irinirk of Kentucky; junior vice-president, Mrs. Blasmer of Missouri.

Resolutions were adopted at the national camp of the Grand Army declaring it the sense of the organization that all veterans should be favored by civil service boards; that such boards should not discriminate against these heroes of the rebellion on account of their age; favored the placing of flags upon every public school building, and the introduction of military drill in the school curriculum; asking congress to make an annual appropriation to defray the expenses of conducting memorial day services in national cemeteries; favored the establishment of a military post at Vicksburg, Miss., and for the erection of a soldiers' home at Camp Supply, O. T.; appointing a committee to arrange for the erection of a monument at Washington to commemorate the loyal women who served as nurses or in other ways aided the soldiers of the Union during the rebellion; recommending that congress should pass a law requiring the war widow to get all small relief at least at a month.

Independence Hall will be the permanent depository of all the books, records and relics of the Grand Army.

Dr. James Whiting of Janesville, Ill., was elected surgeon by acclamation. Rev. Thomas Vining of Utah was chosen chaplain in chief.

The report of the committee on pensions was similar to that of last year, and was unanimously adopted.

The roll was called.

WALKED IN HIS SLEEP.

Falls Down an Elevator Shaft and Is Killed.

San Antonio, Tex., Sept. 13. (Special) James McCue, while walking in his sleep, fell through an elevator shaft at Elmendorf station and was killed by the fall.

The fall was caused by a fall in the floor.

the naming of the council of administration, and the councillor chosen for Texas was E. L. Whitman.

After the installation of officers, the encampment adjourned, to meet in St. Paul next year.

WACO FAILURE.

Williamson Drug Company Files a Deed of Trust.

Waco, Texas, Sept. 13. (Special) At 2:30 o'clock this afternoon Dr. W. A. Williamson, during business under the name of the Williamson Drug Company, Waco, Texas, filed a deed of trust to Gen. Felix H. Robertson, trustee, who immediately took up the business.

After providing for the payment of all the expenses of administering the trust, the instrument provides that the trustee may pay the creditors enumerated in classes A, B, and C respectively, the total liabilities in these three classes being $16,782.12.

BODY COMING HOME.

J. H. Henderson's Remains Will Be Buried Near Atlanta.

Atlanta, Ga., Sept. 13. (Special) The corpse of J. H. Henderson of Austin, to be interred in his father's cemetery in the western part of this county. Mr. Henderson went to New York to attend the funeral of his son, and gave instructions that the remains be returned to the state of which he died. He was a native of Cass county, a brilliant lawyer, a devoted son and a good citizen.

ELGIN IMPROVEMENTS.

TO THE DAILY GAZETTE WAS THE OCCASION OF THE OPEN DOORS.

The friends of the Gazette came last night in great numbers. They began to come early and the stream of visitors was unbroken till past 10 o'clock. They were from every quarter of the city of Fort Worth, and from many outside towns. They were all welcome, and every one had a word of cheer for the paper whose success they came to celebrate. The ministers and the teachers and the lawyers and the doctors and the neighbor newspaper men were all on hand and added to the enjoyment of the evening. Through the courtesy of the gentlemen occupying a part of the second story of the building every room in the house from pavement to roof was thrown open and lighted. And all this floor space was in demand, as there were more visitors than the Gazette in its most sanguine moments had hoped to have the honor of welcoming.

They came in response to this invitation, printed on the first page of yesterday's Gazette:

"The Fort Worth Gazette requests the honor of your presence at an informal reception to its friends, at its office, Fort Worth, Tex., this evening, September 13th, at 10 p. m., in honor of the passing of the 12,000 mark by the circulation of the Daily Gazette."

On arriving, the visitors were received at one of the two main entrances and immediately conducted through either the business office or the reporter's room to the press room. Here great interest was manifested in the movement and work of the master perfecting press so rapidly devoured miles after miles of paper in the making of the mammoth edition of the Weekly Gazette, of which more than forty thousand copies were printed. Many were the questions asked by those who had before had no idea of how a great daily newspaper was printed.

From here the visitors streamed through the mailing room where the large force of clerks were making up the bundles for this morning's mail and express cars.

Then they went up stairs to the composing room. Here was their wonder at the speed with which the press was run.

The room is really crowded with the machines and the first who came into the place that seemed so wonderful could scarce get away fast enough for the next to witness the magic performances of the wonderful lithopress, of which half a dozen were at work on today's paper. The life-like motions of the "line arm" that so deliciously takes up rapidly and accurately takes and distributes the "funny faces" of brass plates of brass was a source of unending amusement to all, without regard to age, sex, or previous habitation.

Of course, as there was nothing particularly picturesque or romantic in the attitude of half a dozen men working over dials and keys with such rapidity, the first who came into the place that seemed so wonderful could scarce get away fast enough for the next to witness the magic performances of the wonderful lithopress, of which half a dozen were at work on today's paper. The life-like motions of the "line arm" that so deliciously takes up rapidly and accurately takes and distributes the "funny faces" of brass plates of brass was a source of unending amusement to all, without regard to age, sex, or previous habitation.

The Gazette has done, and is still doing, a great work for Fort Worth and all Texas, and while my connection with the paper resulted rather disastrously in a financial way, yet it has always been a great satisfaction to me to know that it was instrumental in establishing an institution that has done more than any other in changing our former little Panhandle into a full-fledged city that is destined soon to become the metropolis of all Texas.

"It is safe to estimate that each copy of the Gazette is read on an average by five different people, thus giving it 60,000 daily readers. With this immense circulation it will be in position to do better work than ever before. It must be remembered that this paper is the only paper of its kind in the country.
